Updates. . .

Amazon Program UPDATE

Want to help support Pacific Press and the publishing ministry without any extra work or expense? Here's how! When you shop on Amazon, which most of us do (some of us may be responsible for the need for a local distribution center), simply start at www.pacificpress.com/amazon (bookmark it!). There, click the image that says "SHOP. CONNECT. ENJOY." That will open Amazon, where you shop as normal.

When you check out, Amazon will send a percentage (1–10%, depending on the product category) of your total purchase to Pacific Press. Simple! Also, rest assured that we have no way of knowing what you buy, so your obsession with pinky polka-dot panda pajamas will stay your little secret. Remember, start at www.pacificpress.com/amazon! – Marketing Department

Employee Update. . .

Welcome Melia

We have a new face in Reception! We would like to welcome Melia Bale.

Melia was born in the Midwest, she says she's a 'corn-fed Nebraska baby' but has lived in Idaho since 1999. Before she came to work at PPPA, she worked at a third-party logistics company called Verde Fulfillment.

Melia tells us she's a mom to a beautiful, generous and extremely loving little girl named Espen Amari. She picked her first name from Aspen because she had always liked it but it was becoming too common. Her middle name was a suggestion from pastor Randy Maxwell, meaning 'gift from God', after she'd been diagnosed with a CHD following her birth – yet was miraculously healed. Melia is very close with her family and they spend quite a bit of time together. They love the outdoors and especially day hiking trips.

In her spare time, she enjoys any summer outdoor activity like hiking, paddle-boarding, sand volleyball, boating, etc. She is also a foodie and loves trying new restaurants.

Welcome Melia! We are very glad you are part of our Pacific Press family and we look forward to getting to know you better!

Retirement card of Elder Dan Jackson

Elder Jackson has been the Chairman of Pacific Press' Board of Directors since 2014 and we would like to give him a card of congratulations on his retirement. Please remember to come by the Owyhee Room to sign it! Make sure you bring your own pen so we can avoid community sharing. Thank you!
